

WHO NEEDS TO ATTEND?

Industry sectors that can advertise to consumers:
OTC & complementary medicines, medical devices

Media, consumer advocates, regulatory and marketing staff, healthcare professionals, professional board members, advertising agencies, government, retailers

WHY DO WE NEED TO ATTEND?

Therapeutic goods have a special place in the world of advertising as they differ from normal articles of commerce.

A system of advertising controls is in place to help ensure that advertising of therapeutic goods meets standards that safeguard public health and safety, has integrity and delivers the promise made to consumers.

The current system applies to all advertising of therapeutic goods that can be directed to consumers, even where, for any reason, the product is exempt from inclusion in the Australian Register of Therapeutic Goods. It includes all medical devices and self-medication medicines, i.e. OTC and complementary medicines (e.g. herbal remedies, vitamin and mineral supplements, homoeopathic medicines, aromatherapy preparations, traditional medicines).

WHAT WILL BE COVERED?

The 2013 schedule comprises an established one-day “Fundamentals” seminar covering the essentials of the advertising requirements and an “Advanced” seminar for experienced advertisers.

FUNDAMENTALS

The purpose of this comprehensive seminar is to inform and update those involved in the advertising of therapeutic goods on the current requirements for the advertising of therapeutic goods to consumers in Australia - i.e. the application of the Therapeutic Goods Act 1989 Cwth, Therapeutic Goods Regulations 1990 and the Therapeutic Goods Advertising Code (TGAC).

This course covers the essentials of the three levels of advertising controls: regulation, co-regulation and self-regulation. The requirements of each level, and the relationship between each, is explored.

Many examples will be given and ‘workshopped’ during the course of the presentations, to illustrate each aspect of the current system, including the application of the TGAC, the approvals process and complaints resolution mechanisms.

ADVANCED

The advanced seminar meets the needs of those already experienced in the advertising requirements and who are seeking more detailed information about structuring submissions and responses effectively (approvals, restricted representations, complaints). This session will have a strong regulatory focus and will assume that participants are experienced and have previously attended the “Fundamentals” full-day session.

The “in the know” sessions will keep you up-to-date on advertising reforms and Code amendments.

There will be the opportunity to discuss advertising issues of particular interest to you.

Note: For all sessions, the numbers are limited.
